

Update | Wednesday 15 March 2017

Following the call for evidence made by the Review on 11th January 2017, responses have now been provided by many clubs. These responses are being reviewed and will be followed up where appropriate. Further meetings with individuals and organisations who are providing information for the Review are taking place.

The Review is interested in hearing from anyone else who wishes to provide information about the way in which Clubs or the FA dealt with concerns over child sex abuse between 1970 and 2005. They should send that information to football@sportresolutions.co.uk.

This correspondence will be treated in confidence by the Review and in accordance with relevant data protection principles. However, any allegations of criminal behaviour will be forwarded to Operation Hydrant. Anyone who experienced sexual abuse as a young footballer is reminded of the helpline provided by the NSPCC: 0800 023 2642.
